

When I think of an "American hero" I think of my dad. To most people, he may not seem very special. He isn't rich. He doesn't have any special awards or titles, but to me, he is my dad, and that makes him my hero.

A hero is someone who is brave and strong. A hero also thinks of others before themselves.

My dad has had many hard times in his life, but he has stayed happy, and didn't let them get him down. He works very hard to take care of our family. When I am getting ready for bed, he starts getting ready for work. He often goes when he hasn't slept much. He tells me that he does it because he loves me.

There are many other reasons that make my dad my hero. I hope to be like him someday.
